WEDNESDAY.....JANUARY 4, 1888

THE American Horticultural Society will hold its eighth regular meeting in California this year in two sections, first at San Jose on January 24th and continuing three days, and second at Riverside on February 7th, also continuing three days. The society embraces in its membership many of the most scientific men as well as most of the practical fruit growers of the United States, and as the list of subjects to be discussed is varied and extensive those who will have the privilege of attending will not only enjoy a highly intellectual treat but are likely to receive some valuable information. It is the habit of this society to hold its meetings in different sections of the United States to see and study more intelligently the productions of the different States, and no doubt they wish to combine pleasure with the regular business of the society when they selected California as the place and midwinter as the time for holding the meeting.

It is much to be regretted that Nevada is not better represented in this society as it is already demonstrated that in many favorable localities we can produce all the hardy fruits with as much certainty as any State in the Union and always of first quality, besides our climate and soil give us an immunity from fruit pests not enjoyed by any other State.

The society goes to California by the Southern route, the railroad furnishing a special train at reduced rates for the round trip, and no doubt any member attending from here will be allowed reduced rates. It certainly would be advisable for some of our citizens interested in horticulture to attend this meeting to present some of our claims to recognition as a State worthy of some consideration.

THE Eureka Sentinel thus discusses one of the peculiarities of the people of Sageland in relation to the humble nickel of our brethren beyond the Rockies:

In former years the whole Pacific Coast region west of the Rocky Mountains scorned the nickel and copper as too insignificant to be worthy of place in the people's circulating medium. To-day Nevada is the only place in North America where these small coins do not pass current for change in the smaller transactions of the people. In California and Colorado, and all around us, business men will change a twenty dollar piece to collect the humble nickel, and copper cents are met with everywhere on the Coast outside of Nevada. There is nothing in Nevada that can be bought for a nickel, and as for copper, Nevada squaws along the line of the railroad hunt them back with contempt when tendered to the black-eyed paposes in the wicker basket by the generous-hearted Eastern tourist. There was a time in Nevada, not many years ago either, when mining was at its zenith here, that a quarter of a dollar was the lowest denomination honored with a place in our currency. We gradually changed our business methods with the times and the influx of people from the older States, and finally came down to the dime as the minimum measure of value. For our own part we shall not care if we never go lower. It may not be economical and that, but to us there is something broader and nobler in the nickel than prevails here than for the found elsewhere on the fringes of the true Nevada as arm-hearted individual in this world. There is nothing mean or a matter of fact he stands out a peer in all the better qualities of the human heart. We speak generally, of course, and shall not deny that there is to be found now and then in the State the necessary exception to maintain the integrity of the rule. But as a race we put the people of Nevada against all the rest of Christendom for open-hearted liberality. We may be small in numbers, but we are warm and big of heart.

SMALLPOX seems to be epidemic in San Francisco. The city authorities have been very wary of doing anything toward protecting the health of the city by the sea, but depended upon the sea breeze to carry off the sewer stench and malarious vapors which an imperfect system of sewerage generated. It was a short-sighted policy which advocated and sustained the dollar limit, and its illurians advocates will be made aware of it at the cost of many lives and money.

MARCUS D. BORUCK has resigned the Secretaryship of the American party in California, and has declared that henceforth he will be found in the ranks of the straight Republican party. Thereat there is much joy indulged in by the Republican journals of that State, and they make merry over the return of the lost sheep that had strayed away from the fold. Marcus is better than a raw hand at determining where the popular and profitable side of the political fence is to be found, and, while he may have wandered after strange gods, it was only during a fit of temporary insanity.

FROM what can be learned about the real inside condition of things at Austin, matters are not so bad as reported. The Manhattan Company is out of existence, but the mines are not exhausted, and the personal property, bought in by the miners, who were lienholders, will make them more than even on the wages due them by the bankrupt company. All that is needed is careful management by some clear-headed receiver, whom the lienholders should appoint, and the mine can again be made to produce as it has for many years past.

PERSONAL.

Frank Mattos, the Lander county cattleman, accompanied by his wife, is registered at the Depot.

L. Brooks, of Hayes & Co., Oakland, is in Reno looking after the beef cattle his firm are feeding on the meadows.

Jesse Moore and W. D. Hunt, of the firm of Moore, Hunt & Co., wholesale liquor dealers of San Francisco, are stopping at the Depot hotel.

Judge Bigelow will leave for Elko Saturday evening, where he will hold court for a week or ten days. Among other cases he will have three murder trials to hear.

John A. Moody, of Chicago, is visiting his friend Dr. Thoma. Mr. Moody is connected with the Public Works of the Lake City, and is spending his vacation on the slope.

A. Pierce, an elderly gentleman who is largely interested in the works of Oroville, Nevada City, Marysville and Chico, arrived from the West last evening, and has been inquiring, it is said, into the business of our local gas works with a view to purchasing.

W. W. Rogers, of Elko, came in from the East last evening, and is registered at the Palace. He is Grand Master of the I. O. O. F., of Nevada, and to-morrow evening will install the newly-elected officers of our local lodge—Truckee No. 14, Reno No. 19, and Washoe No. 8. The ceremony will take place at the hall of Reno No. 19, in the Congregational Church building, and will be performed with unusual solemnity.

Serious Fire at Milford.

A correspondent of the GAZETTE at Milford, under date of the 1st inst., writes as follows: There was a most lamentable affair happened here last evening. Dick Robert's barn was burned to the ground, and an old man, 70 years of age, named Toby Martin, twenty-one head of horses, including the well-known trotting horse Shiver, three calves, harness, vehicles, feed, etc., were cremated. The blame for the fire is laid at the door of Martin, who was sleeping in the barn at the time, having been on a New Year's spree. It is thought that in attempting to light his pipe the blaze caught the inflammable material by which he was surrounded, and that he was too much intoxicated to save himself. The loss to Robert's is very severe, he having lost besides the barn and its contents eight head of horses, a Mr. Hapgood, of Surprise Valley, lost two horses, Martin one, and four Indians each one. Our informant could not learn the names of the owners of the others. Robert's loss is estimated at $9,000; insurance, $2,500.

"Monte Cristo."

The advent of the Lewis "Monte Cristo" Company this evening will be a great dramatic treat to our citizens. The following lines, clipped from the Evening Telegram, Portland, Or., November 22, speak for themselves:

A very creditable performance, indeed, was that given of "Monte Cristo" last evening by Mr. Horace Lewis and his company. Mr. Lewis is a careful painstaking actor, and has gathered about him one of the best traveling companies that has visited the Northwest for some time. As the rollicking young sailor, Edmund Dantes, honest and loving, warm-hearted and ready to forgive his enemies, Mr. Lewis gives a fine characterization of the part. As the Abbe Busoni he was quiet, calm and strong, repressing the emotion that rose in his breast as he becomes the man who has but one object in life, revenge. As the Count of Monte Cristo Mr. Lewis furnishes a powerful character.

THE telegraph still knocked out. The telegraph wires are still in a badly demoralized condition, and at this writing it is not known when communication will be again had with points West. It is stated that over 130 telegraph poles were prostrated between Truckee and Prosser creek by the late storm, and that the company is making every endeavor to repair the damage done. Two crews of linemen—one from San Francisco, consisting of forty men, and one from Reno, under the lead of Line-repairer Peterson—are now on the ground, but as the snow in some places is from ten to twelve feet deep, but little progress is being made.

Nevada Will Assist.

At a meeting of the California Teachers' Association held last week in San Francisco, President Brown, of the University of Nevada, delivered an address in which he said: "On behalf of the Teachers of Nevada I hereby pledge our time, our money and whatever talent we may have to make the San Francisco meeting of our National Association the grandest educational convention of this splendid century."

Read the Death Roll.

Which the bills of mortality of any large city may be fitly designated, and you will find that renal and vesical maladies, that is to say, those that affect the kidneys or bladder, have a remarkable prominence—we had almost said—preponderance. Bright's disease and diabetes in the chronic stage are rarely cured, and gravel, catarrh of the bladder and ureters, slay many. Yet at the outset, when the trouble merely amounts to ineffectuality of the organs involved, the danger may be nullified by that pleasant renal tonic and diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which imparts the requisite amount of tone to the organs, without over-exciting them, and the use of which is convenient, and involves no elaborate preparation. Dyspepsia, a usual concomitant of renal complaints, and debility, which they invariably produce, are remedied by it. So also are constipation, malarial, rheumatic and nervous ailments.

FROM WASHINGTON.

RENOITE SPENDING THE HOLIDAYS THERE.

Christmas Day—An Interview With Senator Stewart Respecting the Carson Public Building—A Social Scandal in the Household of a Former Nevada—Other Matters of Interest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 26, 1887.

Editor Gazette—Christmas day, as a rule, is a joyous occasion in Washington. All of the thousands of employees of the various governmental departments are allowed "a day off," and the host of smiling faces on Pennsylvania Avenue this afternoon served as an index of the appreciation felt for those who established the custom and are instrumental in seeing that it is continued from year to year.

Christmas was generally celebrated by the churches yesterday with appropriate sermons and impressive services of song. It was my good fortune in the morning to attend St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, where an elaborate program was announced for the solemn high mass service. The music was of the highest order, and had been selected with a view to its appropriateness to the festival. To say that it was grand gives but a faint idea of portions of it. When the leading alto rendered her merrere solo of the "Gloria in Excelsis," it was with so much expression that great tears stole down her cheeks, and but few of the vast audience present failed to feel a sense of sympathetic solemnity. Did I say she sang the selection with expression? I meant to say soul.

I met Senator Stewart in a Pennsylvania Avenue street car Saturday afternoon, and among other things asked him what, if anything, was being done towards constructing the proposed public building at Carson. He answered:

"I called on Supervising Architect Freer, recently appointed, a few days ago, and was agreeably surprised to find him thoroughly impressed with the duty of his office, and, to all appearances, making an honest effort to use the money appropriated for public buildings according to the designs of Congress. His subordinates, however, appeared to be in the old ruts and full of evasion and unreasonable excuses for their extravagant waste of the money appropriated for erecting buildings. One hundred thousand dollars was appropriated for a public building in Carson. Twenty thousand dollars has been expended, all of which was wasted, except the amount used for the purchase of a site for a building. The subordinates in the office appear to devote themselves exclusively to selecting material most difficult to be had in each particular locality, either for the purpose of favoring friends who have the material for sale or out of pure cussedness to obstruct the public business. I requested Mr. Freer to telegraph to the Superintendent, Mr. Ryland, for information as to what material in Nevada was suitable for the purpose of the building, and also to inquire of him if the building was constructed of Nevada material if bidders could be found in our State. He also telegraphed Mr. Yerington to consult with the Superintendent with regard to the matter. Mr. Yerington is a practical man, and so is Mr. Ryland, and I am in great hopes that they will devise a plan by which the remaining $80,000 will be sufficient to erect a building. I don't think there will be any more effort here how not to do it. If there is, I shall be forced to ask an investigation of the matter by a committee of the Senate; but I have great faith in Mr. Freer, and I believe that he will do everything in his power to secure the construction of a building with the money at his disposal. I don't wish to be understood as casting any reflection upon the President or the head of the Treasury Department, but I am satisfied that the persons in charge of the Bureau of Construction have been guilty of gross negligence and extravagance in the use of public money, or something worse, and I am glad to say that I think there has been a change for the better."

"Have you had much Department business to look after for Nevada?" asked the writer.

"Oh yes! scarcely a day passes but that I receive from a half dozen to ten letters from my constituents, asking me to look after private and public business for them. I have just been up to the Postoffice Department to get an increase of mail service to three trips a week between Luning and Midas, Nye county, but the Department refuses to do anything in the matter, claiming that the service already given the towns costs about $1,000 per annum more than the gross receipts are. But here I have got to get out. Come out and see us one evening. Number 1707 Rhode Island Avenue."

The Senator is certainly an indefatigable worker for Nevada. He has been present in the Senate Chamber during every session held this far, and his voice is generally heard whenever matters of public interest are discussed. His silver speech delivered on the 15th instant has been his greatest triumph this far. He is in receipt of many letters and dispatches from all over the country, hoping it will pass. Newspaper criticisms, too, have been favorable. The Louisville Courier-Journal, in a long editorial, speaks very highly of it, and hopes to see it pass both Houses of Congress. It will be introduced in the House by Congressman Woodburn after the holidays.

On Tuesday last the Senator made quite a speech on the Mormon question. It appears that Mr. Call, of Florida, asked to have a memorial of the constitutional convention of Utah printed in the Congressional Record. The memorial stated the desire of citizens in respect to the admission of Utah, and the facts of the case. The bill of the anti-polygamists in the Territory, both Mormon and non-Mormon, and the good faith of both the polygamists and the anti-polygamists in accepting the Edmunds-Hoar law and making it a part of their political solution. A lively discussion followed as to the printing of the memorial as requested. Senator Stewart vigorously opposed it, and claimed that it might be construed as an expression of opinion that it is possible now to entertain a proposition for the admission of Utah as a State.

On Wednesday last the Senator made, during a discussion of the concurrent resolution from the House of Representatives proposing an adjournment of the two Houses from December 22, 1887, to January 4, 1888, a speech on the tariff. He also introduced a bill on the 19th instant to establish a United States Land Court. Of these space forbids me, I suppose, to speak at length.

Quite a sensational scandal has occurred in the household here of former Nevadaans. Miss Bessie Hillyer, the accomplished and pretty daughter of Hon. C. J. Hillyer, who has acquired a large fortune by the practice of law and real estate transactions, was engaged to be married to the son of Controller of Currency Trenholm, and the wedding was to have taken place very shortly. But there was a greater attraction for Bessie in Baltimore, and the other day she went to that city ostensibly to visit a friend. An hour after her arrival there she was married to the real choice of her affections, and young Trenholm still lingers in single blessedness. Gossip says that Bessie's father is about to commence proceedings to have the marriage declared illegal, claiming that she was abducted. Inasmuch as the Trenholms and Hillyers move in the "best society," the matter has given rise to considerable talk.

By the way, I met Major Quailfe, brother of Miss Eva Quailfe, head of the Department of the Chief of Bishop Whitaker's School for Girls, the other day. The Major holds a high position of trust in the Treasury Department, and is a very clever gentleman. I was surprised to hear him talk as intelligently of Nevada matters as though he had once been a resident of the State, and was still eager to keep himself posted on events there.

F. B. MERCER.

A BOON TO FARMERS.

Reno to Receive the Daily Weather Indications.

The following communication from C. M. Fassett, State Weather Observer for Reno, explains itself:

RENO, Jan. 3, 1888.

EDITOR GAZETTE—I have just received a letter from Mr. C. W. Ryland, Director of the Nevada State Weather Service, in which he states that Reno will soon receive the daily weather indications of the United States Signal Service by telegraph from the Signal office at San Francisco. This service, which is of great value to our people, will be carried on free of expense to them, as the W. Department furnishes the telegrams and the work of posting is done by the State Observer without pay; but Mr. Ryland states that "it is desired, if possible, to display weather signals at all places at which indications are received. The signals to consist of flags elevated upon a suitable staff."

Now if the people of Reno will raise a good, tall flag-staff at the intersection of Virginia street and Commercial Row, and furnish a suitable set of flags, I will attend to the placing of the signals as telegraphed, and do it without asking any increase in my salary. This staff and signal flags will cost perhaps forty dollars, possibly fifty, and if the matter were properly put before the County Commissioners, I have no doubt but that they would see it in its proper light and allow the necessary coin.

Please place this information before your readers and oblige. Your obedient servant,

C. M. FASSETT, State Weather Service Observer.

Accident on the Rail.

Shortly after 5 o'clock this morning as the Virginia & Truckee local was passing the Baltic switch near Gold Hill, an accident occurred which cost a young man named James his life, and seriously crippled another young man whose name is unknown. It appears that a force of men were engaged in shoveling snow from the track, when the train noiselessly approached. Before the men could find a place of safety the two men were struck by the train, James being killed outright and the other thrown across the track, breaking both legs below the knee. He was taken to Gold Hill, where he is being carefully attended. James was about 20 years of age and was well-known on the Comstock.

Mining Notes.
The Nevada Queen mine at Tuscarora is shipping bullion at the rate of $50,000 a week.
The mill at Reville, Eureka county, is still running on tailings, and regular bullion shipments are made by Wm. R. Norris.
The Minnie Moore mine in Wood River, Idaho, has been shut down, the grade of ore being too low to be converted into bullion profitably on account of the high freight on coal.
The holting works of the Onondago mine, Ploche, were blown to atoms recently by the explosion of 13 sticks of giant powder, placed under the stove to thaw. The old story.

PREBLE & YOUNG, Real Estate Agents, —DEALERS IN— Country and City Properties in Nevada and California.

For Sale.

$30,000. Mrs. Howard offers her ranch in the Virginia road, the most desirable of all the country roads in Nevada. It is located eight miles from Reno and in a fertile agricultural section. The ranch consists of about 80 acres and a valuable water right. The ranch has long had the reputation of being one of the most productive of its size of all the ranches in the Truckee Meadows. This year it has produced 800 tons of hay, pasture for 200 head of stock, vegetables and other products in value about $8,000. By the expenditure of a few hundred dollars the ranch could be made to be even much more productive than it is at present. The soil is admirably adapted to the raising of alfalfa, stock and vegetables. It has an excellent house, barn and other buildings, a good orchard and other improvements. Price, $30,000; 1/2 cash and the remainder in five equal annual installments. Interest at 8 per cent, per annum.

$13,650. A. Banta's ranch located east from Reno is offered for sale. It consists of 435 acres, which will be sold at $30 per acre, or for $13,650 and on easy terms of payment. There is on the place a good house of eight rooms, two barns and other buildings. The place has plenty of fine irrigating water and some fifty springs of excellent drinking water. The ranch yielded this year 500 tons of hay, and pasture valued at not less than $1250. The total valuation of this year's yield is not less than $5,000, and some of the hay has amounted to as much as $5,000. As the ranch consists chiefly of pasture and meadow land, the expense of running the place is exceedingly small. The ranch is especially desirable as a stock range and for this purpose would yield a handsome profit on the amount invested.

FOR SALE. Lots 10, 11, and 12, in Block, 4, Marsh's Addition, south side of river, very desirable location. House of two rooms (hard finished) and bath; lot cleared; size, each 50 by 140. A bargain.

Cattle on Shipboard.
William Reilly is the foreman of one of the largest cattle exporting houses in this city, says the New York Star. He has made about fifty trips across the ocean, taking from 100 to 200 cattle each trip.

"We are improving every day," he began in answer to the reporter's inquiry as to how the exportation is carried on, "but nothing," he continued, "will ever be absolutely perfect until some one builds a ship purposely for cattle exportation."

When we first began to export, we were new in the business, and we had to pay heavy for our experience. At that time we used to lower the animals into the hold of the vessel in pens in which they were packed so tight that they could not move. It was impossible for them to lie down, and if one managed to, it could not get up again—but soon another would drop from sheer exhaustion, and then the scene that would follow after the pressure had been broken would defy description. Many in the pen would be either trodden or kicked to death, others have their limbs broken and have to be killed.

Nowadays the system is more perfect in the hold of the vessel. In such large ships as those of the Monarch Line, the Ludgate Hill, and other big freight ships, whose holds are wide and perfectly constructed for the traffic, we build stalls running the whole length of the ship.

When an animal is lowered into the hold of the ship, it is led along the passageway and backed into one of the stalls which are made of strong boards and timber joists. In this it is firmly bolted by a door. The pen is wide enough to allow the animal to lie down, but no matter how heavy the sea is, it cannot be thrown down, as it is strongly protected both front and rear."

"How do cattle act at sea?"
"Well, when first shipped, what, with the excitement of being lowered into the hold, and then backed into the stall—and that is no easy job, I tell you—the animal is certainly more or less excited; but when, after two hundred get excited—and I've taken more than that at one trip—then it is a scene that is apt to try the nerves of a man. Cattle for exportation are selected from the best stock and are therefore well fed and high mettled. For that number of cattle I generally have about thirty men with me, the shipowners allowing so many to go free as helpers to the other side. I have the animals' heads made, their mangers well filled with the most tempting food and plenty of water served them. We generally bring them hungry, and they begin munching, and by the time we get outside Sandy Hook they are like a tired hungry person, exhausted by travel, and feeling satisfied and warm. They soon lie down and fall asleep. We never start with a load of cattle in a storm, or in a heavy sea, for if we did the animals would get so scared that even the steadiest ship would feel the effect of their tossing to and fro, and it would be dangerous."

Everything is kept quiet during the night, only the watchman being allowed to stay in the hold where the cattle are stabled. In the morning we feed them again, for it is important to keep them well fed on the way out. Then the ship has struck deep water, and if there is a heavy sea the ship rolls considerably.

"It's strange, but still true," said Mr. Reilly, "but the steer, if alone, is the least easily frightened animal than you can imagine. I have seen fat cattle wake up on their first morning out, while the ship was rolling heavily. They could not get up, so they braced their feet against the sides of the stalls and lay there patiently, now and then lowering, and eating the feed thrown them as naturally as if they were on land."

Cattle do not get seasick, and as soon as they can get on their legs it is a curious sight. They are tossed back and forward, and with their stamping make a terrible racket, and they seem to look at each other as if inquiring what all that shaking up and down meant. It is then the cattlemen's work begins. There are always some vicious brutes among them, and if they were not quickly subdued there would be a panic. The cattlemen quickly, but quietly go to the vicious ones, catch them at once, and if that fails throw them down, but if so, to speak, put them in irons.

Cattle soon get their sea legs, and as, except on stormy days, the hatches are kept open, they get accustomed to their stalls and very few die on the voyage. I think that on an ordinary voyage we lose about three per cent. On a stormy voyage when the hatches cannot be opened, of course we lose more, and nobody would imagine how horrible a ship's hold is with so many head of cattle confined for perhaps two, even three, weeks without having any fresh air.

"Are the English more humane in their mode of killing than here?"
"No, sir," answered Reilly, emphatically, "they still retain the brutal method of killing with the pole which is a painful mode, even if the animal stands steady, but if it moves, I have seen the butcher hit it three or four times on the head before he could bring it down. American cattle are certainly as good, if not better, than English. Why shouldn't they be?"

Give Them a Chance!
That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there your lungs cannot do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is but one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boscche's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed us, you may depend upon.

Good Results in Every Case.
D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold at settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Hussey's Remedy
BLACKLEG IN CATTLE.

I AM making a tour of this State introducing the above-named Remedy.

It is infallible; I have the proofs I guarantee my work. I treat cattle in herds that are dying, and warrant them for fifty cents ahead never to die from the disease.

I have been treating cattle in California for nearly three years successfully and have sold the Remedy to most of the principal stockmen in the State.

I am prepared to furnish satisfactory proofs of the efficacy of my invention
